

GUIDE INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE 2011 “E-LEARNING INNOVATIVE MODELS FOR THE INTEGRATION OF EDUCATION, TECHNOLOGY AND RESEARCH”

Università degli Studi “Guglielmo Marconi” Rome, 18 – 19 November 2011

Received: 22 October 2010
Revised: 17 November 2010

The globalization and the transition from a traditional teaching model to an open one require the development of innovative organization structures and pedagogical models to support complex institutional and university systems, combining education, technology and research.

Taking into account these premises, the Conference will deal with key concepts and themes related to the evolution of the knowledge-based society and the personalization, accessibility and flexibility of the new e-learning models.

THEMES

E-learning quality standards: update research, best cases and experiences

This session aims at providing the opportunity to share best practices and foster the exchange of experiences for establishing new adaptive parameters on the fundamental aspects and processes of e-learning-based education.

Instructional design: how to effectively combine technology and pedagogy

Participants will have the opportunity to analyse instructional problems and feasible solutions, discussing how to successfully merge technology and pedagogy.

Simulations and multi-user virtual environment (MUVE)

International researchers in educational technology are expected to evaluate and give constructive feedback on ways to improve task performance in multi-user setups.

- Assessment, evaluation and self-assessment systems in distance education

This session will focus on the practices of assessment, evaluation and self-assessment in distance education, on how to bridge the gap between current and targeted performance and on the different kind of structured tests.
